

Abstract

Methods are disclosed for sterilizing biological materials to reduce the level of active biological contaminants or pathogens such as viruses, bacteria, nanobacteria, yeasts, molds, mycoplasmas, ureaplasmas, prions and parasites. These methods involve the use of dipeptide stabilizers in methods of sterilizing biological materials with irradiation.

0954-0404